

Property of MOUNTAINFERN ENTERTAINMENT LIMITED

THE ADVENTURES OF NEALON NOON

(SYNOPSIS)

A royal family known as the Tyrain family, empire to the planet and airspace of Tyrainia carries a traitor, Sidorous Tyrain, who attempts murder onto his brother, the planet's current leader and older brother to Sidorous, King Coren Tyrain, for reason of the throne. King Coren decides by royal law and family justice, dismisses Sidorous from the planet, sending him into complete isolation on a holding station far away from their planet. The King having three children, two boys and one girl, the oldest by two years from the middle, the girl, Cornelia N. Tyrain, the middle older by one year from the youngest, Laurence T. Tyrain, and the youngest, Xavior S. Tyrain. Xhavior, carrying the first name of his dismissed uncle Sidorous as his middle name for, Xavior S. Tyrain is the only one of the three siblings that had ever spent time with their uncle, who had constantly warned him of family greed and betrayal, phsycologically training the young Xhavior to uptake what he may not complete if he fails, which he did with his plan of murder to his brother, causing him to be sent into isolation. Seeing this day of his uncle departing onto the transport ship to the holding station, Xhavior is the only of the group in tears, for he was the one who knew most of his uncle, yet did not know that he was using Xhavior as a future brain washed weapon to continue his personal goal against the family for power to the throne. Many years pass and King Coren notices the disturbing behavior resembling to his brother Sidorous within Xhavior towards his siblings, so decides to send him to a high end secured boarding academy, without handing Xavior his crest key, built to open the vault to obtain the deed of his future throned territory until he returns from his teachings at the academy, the deed of his future territory held within the same location as those of his siblings as well, within the Tyrain Family's highly secured vault. The vault orbits within a certain radius of Tyrainia's exterior air space, past the atmosphere level, within the planet's surrounding asteroid belt, the vault disguised as one of the asteroids themselves, not any larger nor any smaller, any of the royal family's crest keys can access through the vault and enter within. Back to the story line. The Royal Academy Of Tyrainia is a certain designed school system for the planets wealth sector, offspring from 16 - 21 that carry personal issue their families would like to be straightened. Xhavior feels abandoned by his family for sending him away from the palace for a years course at the academy, to him, his uncles words were right, but without Xhavior knowing that he has been acting like his uncle who had attempted murder onto the king, yet Sidorous told Xavior that it was all a lie, even though it wasn't, and because of his brainwashing method to Xavior when he was a young boy, Xavior out of love, believed his uncle and listened to every word he had spoke to him of, even to the point of accidentally calling him father.

During his stay at the academy, Xhavior makes friends with a boy about the same age as him, meet Nealon Noon. Nealon is the son of the family that founded the well known cargo company known as Noon Sky, his father strictly under the family law of continuing the family business, yet Nealon has no absolute interest in what his father does, except he carries the dream and ambitions of being a Starship architect or Royal Engineering involving any class of Starship. Every time his father took him to work with him to observe and learn how the business works, but Nealon never payed attention, always ran to the cargo rigs flight deck spending time with the pilots who enjoyed his company and interests on ship flight, so in conclusion, his father sent him to the academy to tighten and direct his focus towards what his family paid the academy to teach him. Throughout his time at the academy, Nealon constantly drew this one specific design of ship craft that he had always shown Xhavior in different directions, functions, and Xavior's question was always, "How and when are you going to do it Nealon?". Luckily carrying the genetic family trate, Nealon had the eye for design, his lines and construct for understanding definition and perspective gave him a natural born gift of industrial arts. Both Xhavior and Nealon grew as close friends, everyday finding out something new to venture through within the academy, yet Xhavior never spoke of his background and reason why he is at the academy to anyone, including Nealon, until one day when something turned his life around. The day Xavior met Jetna Ridgeport, a female student from the female side of the academy's campus and daughter of one of Tyrainia's leading head political advisers to the Royal Tyrain Family. Jenna was brought up completely up right and well mannered, both her parents overly strict with Jetna, caused her to become heavily stressed and lash out returning comment to her father who has constantly insulted her for never doing a good enough job by his or her mother's side, knowing that her father would have preferred a boy rather than a girl, Jetna's mother passed on after delivering her as a baby, Jenna has only ever seen photos of her mother and wishes for one day to see her again forever when she passes on. During lunch, both wings of the academy share the large center cafeteria, and sometimes male classes pass female classes divided by glass bridge walks from one wing of the academy to the other overlooking the city, this is where Xavior first saw Jetna and immediately told Nealon, who's head was usually in the clouds, but always made time for good old Xee Boy as he called Xavior. Finally during one lunch at the cafeteria, Xavior invited Jetna to sit at their table, one thing led to another through cute questionable first attraction, and there you go, the duo now became a trio, Jetna finding Xavior admiring, mysterious, and adventurous decided to join the crew, and now every lunch and after school, the three would explore areas of the campus belonging only to authorized personnel and much more, telling stories, trading and selling their studies with a few of the other students, taking the blame for one another when one was in trouble, all of the beauty that true friendship naturally offers through love. At the last day before graduation, the academy throws a congratulations party, all of the students enjoy a free day to do anything but work, a dream for every school suffering student. After the celebration, Nealon seemed to have lost visual of both Jetna and Xavior, not able to find them, he then checks his and Xavior's boarding room, but no one. While in the bathroom, Nealon hears his room door open, followed by the voices of Xavior and Jetna and overhears Xavior whispering what seems to be something confidential. Xavior is explaining his goal and life plan to Jetna on leaving the academy and finding a way to reach and free his isolated uncle from captivity, asking Jetna to either go with him or not go at all, Jetna doesn't know what to say, it sounds to big of a mission for young kids of only 17 years old, Nealon hearing this flushes the toilet of the restroom capturing both Xavior and Jetna's attention, exiting the restroom, stating that he can help only if he can pilot the vessel they will need to reach Xaviors irrational uncle freeing goal, but before you know it, the three are already packing their bags and rondevous at the academy's back hall, where left over party decorations hang, they run their way down the hall with their entire lives on their back, over their shoulder, or in their hands, the trio's first true adventure.

Nealon leads the group onto the nearby city's Sky Rail transport system, their exit at Nealon's family buisness, the Noon Sky Central Docking Station, Nealon states that he has been here so many times, he knows almost every tunnel, port, and shaft they have ever built, due to the blueprints he has always read at home on his father's office desk. Nealon leads them in without a problem, arriving into main transport dock, at the far end of the massive steel bred interior, is another extremely large bay door leading to the standby flight dock, meaning that there are only rigs that aren't complete for a 100% initiated take off, cargo still loading, mechanical problem, fuel charging, ect...The crew of three silently and cautiously make it within the standby dock. Nealon chooses a smaller cargo rig, parked at the end of the silent dock, their footsteps echoing throughout the hanger. They all securely enter the mini rig, settle themselves into the flight deck, Nealon at the controls working his magic the best he can, Xavior remembering the directions as Nealon types and finds them into the ships central navigational system, Jetna assisting checking the ship's supply room and food and survival stock. The crew of three finally strap in, and get ready for launch. A new crew, not knowing that their legacy as Tyrainia's Trio has taken its first step to stardom. The rig launches and they are soon off into airspace, Nealon deepening his voice as he communicates with the control tower crew, who surprisingly believe his act, due to his years of listening to the large rigger pilots and their patterned take off code, both Xavior and Jetna are stunned by Nealon's accomplishment, thanks to his love of starships, even though the dashboard is a little too high for him, the view is withstandable. The crew are now successfully on their way, they decide to celebrate a little, Xavior more serious then both Jetna and Nealon, but still carries a smile to their determined success. After the mini celebration of jokes and fizz, the group decide to take a rest, Nealon having put the ship into auto pilot in coordinates to their selected destination, The Royal Tyrain Holding Station. All three using only three of the ships emergency blankets that Jetna had brought up to the flight deck earlier, Nealon sleeping close to the controls incase of anything and both Xavior and Jetna together near towards the deck's middle underneath the large skylight, previewing the stars of the galaxy slowly passing by as the two hold each other speaking themselves to sleep, Nealon silent to himself, staring out through the cockpits front windshield, Xavior finally falls asleep, Jetna then turns to look at the silent Nealon. All three extremely nervous within themselves for the unbelievable adventure they are realizing they have actually took up and are continuing on with.

Our crew of three sleep peacefully, the rig is silent, only the soft beeps of the cockpits electronic system sound when needed, the ships vibration keeping all three lulled asleep. Suddenly the ship abruptly rumbles and has decreased speed at a rapid rate waking up all three out of their sleep, they have either hit something, or something has hit them. They find out by the cockpits view cameras placed throughout the rig that they have been boarded by a ship of pirates, Nealon magnetically seals the flight decks main entry door, keeping them under a double security system. The rig's exterior hull has been badly damaged and has low capability of escape, the rear thrusters fuel shaft has been blown apart causing the rig to lose all flight power leaving it gliding to wherever the solar winds take it, but for now the pirate freighter has a hold on the rig, keeping it in place for infiltration. Jetna asks how they will defend themselves, and Nealon already knowing where the armory closet is located, pulls out three of the sub machine guns, very heavy for the three, but they manage. Before they can continue, one of the pirates voice approaches from behind the flight deck door, unable to access entry due to the magnetic seal, the group beginning to shake, Jetna realizing their lives nearly flashing before their eyes, Xavior does his best to comfort her, Nealon standing the most strong, but just by a fragment. Another pirate is called up and finally unlocks the door, silence, then all hell breaks loose, Jetna charges out of fear, is shot in her left leg, Xavior after her fires onto the pirate that had shot her down arriving to Jetna, the bullet hitting the pirate, Nealon then arrives, but is held back from someone or something that gained entry through another access, all three drop their weapons, Xavior only caring to assist Jetna, Nealon placed next to them by he who was holding him, Cyron Helmus, first assistant to the leader of this pirate crew and father of Victor Helmus, future partner to Xavior. The pirate crew's leader, whose voice finally appears from behind the shadows of the flight decks entry stairwell as he makes his way up, Xavior not believing what he is hearing, could it be that voice, and then sees him, the Sidorous Tyrain himself, his uncle, leader of a pirate crew. What destiny this is to Xavior. Xavior asks his uncle to help him and his friends, Sidorous agrees, but Jetna does not, she will not trust the leader of a crew that injured their group, to her Xavior had lied to his friends, and now sees the truth of who his uncle truly is, nothing the way Xavior had described him at the academy, Nealon as well deceived, ashamed to look Xavior in the eyes. Sidorous again reminding the very same words from the past of greed and dishonest friendship, if his two friends truly loved him, they would stand by his side no matter what situation. The confusion nearly erupting within Xavior's mind, until Jetna has enough and finally strikes out insulting Sidorous and his worthless being of a human, the pain on her leg holding Xavior from returning argument to her, Nealon moving in to assist Jetna, Jetna wrapping her arms around Nealon in a manner that Xavior can't believe as she states that she is finished with him and would rather he be dead than fall into the hands of his uncle. Just then all tables have been turned as Xavior S. Tyrain backs into his uncle realizing what he thinks is true, which isn't that his friends have betrayed him, due to the resurrecting brainwash his uncle had planted within him. Xavior departs tears in his eyes as the only love he had ever had bleeds on the floor next to his best friend, who finally stares at him, xavior's eyes in complete deception as he departs into the shadows, mind blank, a wrong choice, a shaded chapter, now to be known as Sidorous X., replacing X from Xavior with S of his middle name to his first name, since he carried down his uncle's first name as his middle name, considering himself to be the follow up, finally beginning to emerge out from his uncle's legendary shadow. Xavior and his new family departs the rig and just as Xavior approaches his final steps before boarding the large freighter of his uncle, his mind suddenly switches, turning around and attempting a dash back for the rig, but Sidorous stopping him at the bridge entry, looking down at him with that of a caring glare, his energy telling him, not to worry.

The pirate freighter takes off, leaving Nealon and Jetna behind in the abandoned rig. Nealon now doing his best to assist the nearly destroyed and injured Jetna, her emotion breaking away piece by piece through every beautiful memory she ever had with Xavior, not allowing to believe what is happening. Nealon sees that the cockpit displays no more power, oxygen levels decreasing, the ship is basically considered scrap metal. The two make their way to the twin emergency shuttle bridge, climbing in and launching themselves on reserved fuel out and away from the rig.

In the escape shuttle, Nealon isn't familiar with how its controls actually function and has a hard time with it, then accidentally pushes a few unfamiliar buttons and switches activating a search for the nearest planet to land on system. During their time in the shuttle, Jetna's leg isn't getting any better, Nealon doing the best he can to take care of her the best possible, until she finally tells him something he will never forget from this point on into his entire life, Jetna Ridgeport tells Nealon Noon that she has always loved him, Nealon sits shocked, one of his best friends falling within his arms has just told him something more profound than any other meaning that he as a human being has ever felt from anything or anyone ever before, just then Jetna struggles her neck up impacting Nealon with a kiss as she takes her last breath and passes on, her dream to meet with her mother has finally come true, Nealon still and taken into a world of new inner discovery breaks down and lets loose his tears, drowning through the shuttles metal flooring.

The shuttle finally reaching the accidentally routed nearest planet's atmosphere, on one side it being a good accident for their fuel and oxygen reserve was low, due to the rig's impact earlier. The shuttle fires its way through the planet's high cloud line shaking at unbearable vibrating conditions, the ship feeling as if it could burn apart at any moment, until, blue skies, the weather bright and doused in sunshine, a tropical planet, the waters, crystal clear, the sand white as the clouds depart giving view to Nealon holding the passed on Jetna within his arms, the sunlight reflecting on the dashboard, nearly blinding Nealon's teared filled eyes as he looks up at the planet's approaching beauty. The shuttle gliding down the planet's blue skies, finally skid crashing onto one of the nearby deserted beaches shallow water, Nealon not wanting to leave Jetna's body behind, taking it bravely in tears with him over his back and across the beach's hot sanded coastal line, hoping to find a sign of civilization, hoping that this isn't a nature only bound planet.

After journeying across the shoreline for many hours, Nealon finally sees what seems to be a small town on the near heat drenched horizon, but can't take another step due to the heavy heat and unbearable fatigue, not able to make it, finally falling forward and passing out on the soft white sand below, Jetna's body dragging down next to him.

Nealon is awoken later by a young boy about the same as him, the young islander carrying a darker skin tone, meet Jamal Westwind. Jamal is the son of Sand Dollar town's leading mechanics for a ship and part repair service. Nealon finds himself somewhere within the small tropical civilization he had seen before he had passed out on the beach earlier. Without hesitation jolts awake in search for Jetna, who he finds lying next to her, he runs to her, puts his ear against her chest to hope miraculously for a heartbeat, but no, nothing, then the voice of the islander boy that had discovered Nealon on the beach earlier speaks out telling Nealon that they can bring her to Crystal Lake, a lake located in the center of Mt. BlueFire, the planet's only towering peak, its name leading after the planet's capital city located at its baseline, Bluefire City. The volcano has been dormant for over 8,000 years and over those years, the magmatic pressure built underneath within its internal and still passionately burning core has produced that of rare rock evolution, the volcano's peak opening carving itself inward a few hundred meters, filled with the natural heated water of thousand ton geysers flowing upward filling the volcano's peak inners, overflowing the peaks upper surface, causing multiple waterfalls to gracefully pour downward into the grand rock lakes below, the volcano's inner peak surface growing with large crystals, giving the one of a kind tower its name. On the planet of Solflare, the inhabitants culture is to bring those who have passed on to Crystal Lake and lay their body within, the energy of the large crystals harnessing the bodies energy, beautifully evaporating the physical within the warm waters below. Nealon finally meeting Jamal's large family and both seeing and feeling how honest and full of love their family is, and they are, so in conclusion agrees to bring Jetna's body to Crystal Lake and lay her in the water for her physical to finally and peacefully rest, removing the necklace that her mother had given her when a child and put around his neck, then remembering the exact touch of her hair and skin, beauty of her being, then finally letting her drift down to the lake's glistening bottom to her body's final rest. Now alone, Nealon has no alternative of escape, misses his family, his two lost friends, more Jetna than Xavior, yet still thinks of him and where he could be at this moment. Jamal and his family understand now that Nealon has no family, and as he states are on Tyrainia, so they commit to the best possible solution and offer to take him in for the time until he can find a way home, and so he does. Nealon begins his new life with Jamal, who soon becomes his true best friend, as Jetna was to him and still is within his spirit. What luck that Jamal's father is a professional mechanic and ship constructor, this completely comforting Nealon even more to move on stronger with his life day by day. Jamal teaching Nealon how to Sky Stream, special air boards designed by Jamal and his father personally to be able to surf along the clouds above, literally living the fantasy of walking on clouds. A double hinged board to calibrate body weight at your own timing, quad stream shafts to generate eco friendly air pressured gliding power through multiple currents with both balance and style. Throughout the new life and motivational uplift, Nealon decides to take up a personal mission and build a starship of his own to return one day back home to Tyrainia, Jamal dreaming to accompany him on his journey, and so they did, when that final day had arrived 8 years later, both boys now young adults and ready say farewell to their family and now journey their way back home, the ship a success, a personal design by Nealon with Jamal's father's teachings, its name, The N.N. Skystream, named both after Nealon and Jamal's Sky Stream family invention, the ship's color a jade green, a thin red line painted horizontally across the ship's body, leading to the first N. of N.N. abbreviated on the tail wing, Skystream painted in the sportive font that both Jamal and his father have invented for their hope to be successful franchise, Jamal bringing his board with him to universally promote along his journeys with Nealon. They launch and successfully blast off into the sky.

Along their route to Tyrainia, Jamal can't believe what his eyes are seeing, his eyes encountering outer space for the first time in his life, he has never left home farther than Bluefire city, where Jamal and Nealon constantly voyaged to together in search for certain needs, Jamal for his Sky Stream board, and Nealon for parts for his starship, the planet's people extremely and rarely kind into both selling and offering the two now well known and mini famed travelers of Sand Dollar Town.

Finally arriving in Tyrainia, Nealon's first errand is to deliver and return Jetna's neckless back to her home, yet Nealon hesitates to give the only piece left of a beautiful friendship in front of him, only a memory would be left, no more smell, touch, or reminded feel, yet its only the right thing to do, her father has no one left but himself, so the two continue their way to where Jetna's family's home, a large home located on the rolling mountains of Tyrain City's closest outskirts line. They arrive and make their way to the home until both Nealon and Jamal find out that no one no longer lives there, the house is for sale, it seemed that stress and sadness have flooded Jetna's father's body, leaving him either to leave or die alone, who knows what had happened with one of Tyrainia's leading political advisors. Destiny has spoken to Nealon to continue to keep hold of Jetna's neckless and for the first time, wraps it around his neck, for her father is now with both her and her mother in the sky. Next is Nealon's parents, the thought of voyaging to his family home on Tyrainia sits utterly uncomfortable and extremely unsure, he hasn't truly ever had the best relationship with his parents, to them business and wealth spoke on the first place podium before Nealon, who stood on second. Nealon only ever knew his parents, not his grandparents, nor any uncles or aunts, yet they still are his parents and the natural instinct of missing the touch of his own blood will always shine within, this through anyone. Making a decision, the two make their way to the NoonSky transport main dock, and upon arrival, they find out that it had been closed down, another company has replaced the intergalactically famous cargo transportation system. Nealon's father had personally closed down the company, for he strictly only wanted family to continue their empire, not state, government, nor planet. Nealon wasn't home in order to have continued what his ancestors had started, nor is their any sign or news of the whereabouts of his parents. A property guard at the NoonSky Transport Bay told Nealon that the owner of the company had left Tyrainia a few years ago as Nealon asked without defining who he was in relationship with his parents to get a honest answer from the guard. After speaking with the property guard, Nealon and Jamal sneak their way around the bays cliffside walling, the very same place where Nealon had entered when he was younger with both Jetna and Xavior. The two make their way through the now aged air hull tunnel into the hollow cargo hanger, where the massive cargo liners sit docked one along side the other in order according to use and system. Nealon takes in a moment to look at everything his family had built for him to now carry on, a slight shimmer of tears glisten within his eyes as he absorbs the beauty of the strong and defiant freighters that sit with honor in front of him. He and Jamal make their way into Nealon's father's head office to discover through his father's secret safety compartment, located beneath stone carved sundial on the floor below, the Noon Family will written and signed by Nealon's father himself in dedication to his son Nealon Ryhn Noon. Nealon reads the papers, the headlining of the will reads,

"To my son Nealon Ryhn Noon, From your father, Richard Brine Noon, Nealon, I know you have found this letter, the decision is in your hands now, Always, your father."

Nealon then turns the page and notices a encoded private navigation path in direction for his home planet as the first step to retrieving the family vault, the second step will appear more clear when retrieving the first step at 100% understanding. Laying below the papers is a C.D.I.C. (Compact Disc Information Card), similar to that of Xavior's, when they were younger and used it to locate Xaviors uncle in the holding station. The C.D.I.C. can only function properly when inserted into a Drive Reader as well with the correct fingerprint matching, of course Nealon's father had opened a Nealon Ryhn Noon file in the C.D.I.C. containing both his complete alias and existence, including the needed finger print. He scans his father's extra secure directions as he takes the will and the pen next to it, he then re-rotates the stone sundial carving back into place as if no one had ever entered, the two leave the office. Jamal and Nealon properly remove one of the Drive Readers from one of the docked freighters to install into the N.N. Skystream, for the Skystream is built basic with functions only proper for flight travel.

Finally, the two decide to Leave Tyrainia and begin onto their new and first destination out of the encoded path, Nealon's home planet, E-Starr, but before they start up their engines and leave Tyrainia, they park on a hill peak, located just below Mt. Tyrain, just ahead and above in the near distance stands the Royal Tyrain Family Palace, and below, the capital city of Tyrainia, Tyrain City. These high rolling hills are renown in all of Tyrainia, but stand the most elegant here at the base of their tectonic leader, Mt. Tyrain. Jamal surfs just nearby, above, and around their parked location, hoping that people from the city below will notice his air streams to promote his board, Nealon sits in his ships exterior con-caved radar scanner, reading the record book of his family's will and map with the directions to where Nealon must travel to, marking notes with the pen from the stone safe. Nealon takes his eyes off of the paper for just a few seconds, notices Jamal fly by above and attempt to pull a stunt on his Skystream, but fails as he nearly loses grip, but regains calibration, having Nealon chuckle to himself until something else in the near distance catches his eye. Parked on another peak hill a few hundred meters away he spots a tall figure standing outside from another ship, a much larger ship. The figure young, and definitely of male status, carrying a strong physical build, the same goes for the figure's ship, a mini freight flyer, the smaller model of transport freighter, yet this one seems custom. Just as Nealon begins to stare at the figure from far away, it seems to Nealon that the figure turns to stare back at him, almost as if he has known him from sometime before. Just then, Jamal streaming by in front of Nealon breaks the moment between Nealon and the distant figure, Jamal yelling to Nealon that he finally mastered the stunt he failed at from before. He attempts again as Nealon watches, but this time crashes down onto the grass below them, not off of the cliff side. Nealon this time seems a bit worried if Jamal has no injuries or anything under that matter, and no is the answer as Jamal lifts his hand up in air with a thumbs up as he picks himself up off of the ground, Nealon smiles, just then a ship flies above the two, both Jamal and Nealon look up at the passerbyer, Nealon noticing that it was the ship from the figure he had stared at seconds ago. Nealon found that ship and the figure piloting it strangely and maybe, just maybe familiar, but doesn't give too much attention to it. Jamal approaches Nealon and Nealon tells him its time to go. The two leave Tyrainia in direction now for Nealon's home planet.

Along the way to E-Starr, Nealon and Jamal find out that they are being followed as they enter a fogged nebula not knowing that the nebula is jam packed with large slow moving asteroids. Massive thunder strikes roar throughout the sea of mist. The ship following them seems utterly familiar to Nealon until he then realizes that it is the same ship that he saw at the peak hills of Mt. Tyrain. Its a raw glide through the hazed sea as both ships decelerate into low gear, thrusters inactive, rear glide foils retracted as they both pull up, down, and around the herd of massive asteroids. All radar and communication systems shut down due to the nebula's thick atmosphere, causing 100% static interference through all electronic maneuvers. They unbelievably encounter Sidorous X (Xavior S Tyrain) for the first time in a long time, now older and commanding his own crew of operators following after Xavior's uncle, his right hand guard and new closest friend, Victor Helmus, son of Cyron Helmus (Sidorous Tyrain's first bodyguard), Rashtank Bagonaway (Xavior's heavy bodyguard), and another young man around the same age of Xavior known as Mr. Brighton (Xavior's first and only business associate). A situation occurs causing Nealon and Jamal to forcefully separate due to a nearly hostile situation, Nealon escaping as well as Jamal, both not knowing where each is going. Xavior and his crew losing track of the N.N. Skystream, a near point disaster.

Months pass.

One foggy evening on the planet Tyrainia in Tyrain City, Nealon spots Sidorous X's ship (Xavior S. Tyrain), he pursues and notices that he is attempting a hostile infiltration into the palace, followed by a kidnapping. The kidnapping aimed to retrieve his Territory Crest that was never handed to him before leaving for the academy when he was young, instead handed down to his brother, Laurence Tyrain's (Now king of Planet Tyrainia) daughter, Princess Talia Tyrain, Sidorous X's niece. The kidnapping is a failure when Nealon intercepts firing onto X's ship, nearly killing one of X's crew men (Victor) and causing Princess Talia to fall into the palace gardens below. The palace security finally enters firing onto X's freighter. X's crew returns fire at both the offensive palace security and Nealon's ship, which is badly hit by X's freighter's exterior armory, forcing Nealon to decrease altitude and lower into the palace gardens below just after Princess Talia. X's crew finally escape, the palace security squad all shot down but one, Jeff Staller (Head of Tyrain Palace Security). His best friend and right hand man dies in front of his eyes, causing him to snap and go after the ship he had seen fall below (Nealon's N.N. Skystream), having as well seen Princess Talia fall before in the same direction towards the palace gardens below. Nealon exits his ship, checks his status then notices a glistening metal object on the ground ahead of him (Princess Talia's Territory Crest), when he picks it up he encounters Princess Talia face to face for the first time. Jeff mistaking Nealon for one of X's crew members interrupts their meeting downstairs firing down onto the voices he hears (Nealon and Talia). A fire arm battle commences where weapons are jammed, rapid fire cross fire, misunderstandings, finally a solution reaches out where Princess Talia knows that the only way to track down Sidorous X and find her kidnapped father is to accompany Nealon Noon, as well not knowing who is firing at them through the fog, even if it is Jeff, both the Princess and Nealon think it is one of X's crew members. The two blast off leaving Jeff behind. During their flight questions are asked and characters are formed (Flashback description of both Nealon and Talia's lives are exchanged, Nealon more than Talia). Back on Planet Tyrainia in the Palace's main and heavily gathered assembly hall, the queen awards Jeff Staller with a medal, who refuses it and decides to quit his work at the palace, instead he takes up the sole decision to make his way after Nealon Noon, who he thought had kidnapped Princess Talia. He gathers his gear, weapons (His handgun, automated machine rifle, and long range rifle of his best friend that had died in front of him), prepares his smaller starship, and makes his way traveling to search and hunt down the crew who had killed his best and most close friend. Nealon reunites with Jamal along his search for Sidorous with Talia's information on where he might be headed, The Royal Tyrain Family safety vault (A top of the line security complex based into the belly of a massive artificial asteroid, within its large crater sit boosters in case of location cahnger, the structure as well contains a high end cloaking device, the strongest their is). Jamal now having successful business with the Skystream board, decides to join Nealon, carrying along his much newer model of his old now transformed Skystream board, for the adventures when they were young together sit priceless, his father and siblings watching over the family business as he departs with Nealon and the new member Talia. During their journey, they encounter many faces including clues to both Sidorous X and Nealon's goal he is still uncovering to retrieve the rights to his family company. Jeff finally catches up with the group, a near hostile situation occurs until he realizes that the princess is in good hands and Nealon is a good guy, as well the fact that he is chasing after the same man both Jeff and Talia are after, Sidorous X, leading Jeff to the decision of joining their group. In the second to last episode (Episode 4), both Jeff and Nealon infiltrate X's ship, uncloaked, but are finally triggered up against X's crew arriving at the conclusion of Jeff's death, who doesn't fall alone, but takes Mr. Brighton out with him. Nealon arrives seconds too late and escapes the ship in time before being hit himself. Jeff dies in front of his new and family built friendship of the N.N. crew. Arriving at our final destination at Episode 5, The end of our story takes place on the Royal Tyrain Family's Safety Vault, where the mini series previews its largest most suspenseful and impactive gun battle contained within the multiple differently designed layers of the massive vaults confines, involving the deaths of Rashtank Bagonaway, Victor Helmus, Sidorous X (Xavior S. Tyrain), and Nealon Noon. Both Princess Talia and Jamal escape in tears, destroyed from the loss of their best friend.

A few months have passed.

Princess Talia has returned to Tyrainia and was throned the youngest queen in the history of the Royal Tyrain Family, and her first movement as Queen Of Tyrainia, she re-opened the Noon Sky Transport Company under dedication to Nealon Ryhn Noon. Jamal's Skystream business finally opening as an international sport sits now based on two planets, his home planet Solflare and Tyrainia, where now Queen Talia assisted him with his promotion. The N.N. Skystream sits statued in memory in front of the Tyrainia based Skystream Corperation Bureau where people can read a sign, "In Dedication to a man that our generation should grow to both learn of and understand, Nealon Ryhn Noon, Last leader of the Noon Sky Transport Company".

END

(Episode layout and understanding)

Enter-The Adventure Of Nealon Noon-Episode 1(Read the script, introduces Nealon Noon, Princess Talia, Chicken, Xavior's brother now older-King Laurence Tyrain, and Jeff Staller)

The Adventures Of Nealon Noon-Episodes 2 (Describing first half of synopsis above described through Nealon Noon's narrated flashback, then continue with present time continuation)

The Adventures Of Nealon Noon-Episode 3 (Describing second half of synopsis above described through Nealon Noon's narrated flashback, then continue with present time continuation)

The Adventures Of Nealon Noon-Episode 4 (Continuation present time)

The Adventures Of Nealon Noon-Episode 5 (Continuation of present time and the conclusion)

Written And Created By Kristopher Van Varenberg